

JD's current project "The Horseman's Edge" is a true inspiration of heart. He is able to take years of expertise and knowledge and compile them into useful tips for the viewers to use in their own arenas. JD also has had the awesome opportunity to meet world-class trainers all across the nation in various performance classes. These world-class trainers will highlight different aspects of performances horses throughout the season on "The Horseman's Edge". "The Horseman's Edge" started off the season at the "DLR Ranch", showing the process for ultra sounding mares and artificial insemination at the Stallion Station. The second show was tips on starting a heeling horse during the first 6 months of training. Shows three and four were on starting a heading horse, and all the necessary steps that must be taken to get your horse started correctly so they will last you a long time. Show 5, which is week 5; JD teams up with Don Murphy, one of the most successful and respected Working Cow Horse trainers in the industry. Kelly Yates, JD's sister, joins JD for show 6 to share techniques on training a world champion barrel horse. JD then travels to California to meet up with Paul Jones, an AQHA Race Horse Trainer for show 7. Show 8 will highlight Bob Avala, the number one Reining horse trainer in America. JD will discuss biting a horse with the top bit maker in the United States, Benny Guitron, for show 9. On show ten, Rich Skelton, 8-time world champion heeler, will join JD.

JD's expertise as well as the expertise of some of his closest friends makes "The Horseman's Edge" the most unique and informative show for the avid horseman. Each week, the viewers will be allowed the opportunity to learn from the best in the performance horse industry. Be sure and tune in to "The Horseman's Edge, with JD Yates" on RFD-TV.
